Major in International Studies

Hours Required: 36 (BA) or 42 (BS program)

The Major in International Studies is an interdisciplinary program that combines critical thinking and analysis skills, ethics, and cross-cultural studies. The program will prepare the student for a career in local, state, federal, and international agencies and organizations where he/she will be equipped to lead from a Christian worldview. Upon completion, the student may also choose to pursue graduate-level education in diverse fields such as law, political science, international business, Christian missions, TESL, MATESOL, public policy and administration.

To receive the BA degree, students completing a major in International Studies must have at least twelve semester hours of credit for modern foreign language. Four three-hour courses in one language or two three-hour courses in each of two languages will fulfill the requirement. Students may be exempted from the requirement on the basis of proficiency certified by both oral and written tests administered by the modern foreign language faculty. It is additionally important to note that 12 hours of proficiency in a single language is a pre-requisite for completion of some concentrations; students planning to pursue a two language strategy should consult with their academic advisor.

To receive the BS degree, students pursuing a major in International Studies do not have to take foreign language courses but must complete six additional hours to be selected from the options available in the Core Courses section of the degree. The faculty strongly recommends that students who expect to enter graduate studies in International Studies or a related field choose the Bachelor of Arts options.
