FACES OF HOMECOMING

A Word from the President...

NOVEMBER 2008

Dear alumni and friends,

We begin a new school year with thankful hearts! For the second year in a row Campbellsville University has received the high ranking of 22nd best among the South's baccalaureate colleges by U.S. News & World Report, and for the 17th consecutive semester, we have a record enrollment. According to the latest numbers, CU has just reached a total of 2,601 students. It is our heartfelt goal that many of these students will be successful and eventually join the over 10,000 CU alumni around the world. What a force for good.

We are thankful, too, that CU is nearing the completion of our $50 million Centennial Capital Campaign, and the expanded base of support has been very encouraging. We will need the continuing financial support of the growing number of Campbellsville University friends as we move forward.

The challenge guiding us as we enter the second century can be summed up in two words, "quo vadis," as spoken so eloquently by president emeritus Dr. Randy Davenport at our Heritage Day chapel service. Quo vadis—the Latin phrase first documented in the Bible when Peter asked of Jesus, "Where are you going?"—applies to our work on the new "vision for the second century" which is being prepared by the Vision Committee.

As we fine-tune the vision of where CU is going for the second century and the next campaign, we are challenged to create the blueprint for the next ten to 20 years and beyond. We remain steadfastly focused on preparing our students for Christian service under the strong conviction that there has never been a greater need than now, and in the future, for Christian higher education.

With every dollar of support given and with each new day, we are focused on better preparing the next generation of Christian servant leaders to go into all the world and work for Jesus Christ.

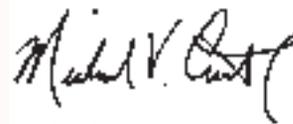

Our FIRST CLASS program, a building block of the servant leader program at CU, is designed to help new students to develop strong Christian character, servant leadership, and stewardship.

The new School of Education building will allow for expansion of services in order to better prepare students for careers in teaching with a solid Christian foundation. We continue to work on the design and fundraising for the proposed School of Business building.

All things come together in our goals of higher student retention and graduation rates, improved academic performance, and essential student experiences that will go with the student throughout his or her lifetime. When a student enrolls at Campbellsville University to find his or her calling, we dedicate ourselves to providing the greatest outcome, helping them launch into the world with the sense of Christian service and leadership. Only in serving are we able to truly find our calling and to determine God's will in our lives.

Please accept our deepest gratitude for your continuing prayers, recommendation of CU to students, your financial support and advocacy which are all critical to Campbellsville University.

Most cordially,

Michael V. Carter

CU sets enrollment record; named again to U.S. News 'Best Colleges'

By Christina Miller, student news writer, and Joan C. McKinney, editor

For the 17th consecutive semester, Campbellsville University has achieved record enrollment with 2,601 students, according to an announcement by Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of CU.

For the second year in a row, Campbellsville University has been ranked 22nd by U.S. News & World Report's "America's Best Colleges" in the 2009 Best Baccalaureate Colleges in the South category. The 22nd ranking is the highest ranking the university has ever received in 16 consecutive years of rankings.

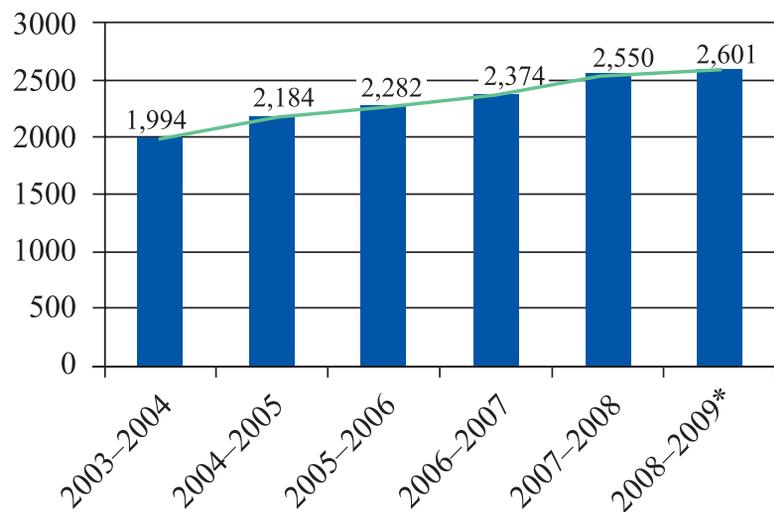

"It is a great accomplishment to be ranked in the top 25 of Best Baccalaureate Colleges," Carter said.

"Students come to CU to 'find their calling,'" Carter said. "We have 43 academic programs from which students can study, and we also have 15 master's programs, including a new master of social work. We also have a new family studies major and a homeland security minor. We also have Rank I and endorsement in gifted and talented education.

"We are expanding our offerings to respond to student needs and wants. The students are why we exist. We want to serve their needs," he said.

Campbellsville is offering some courses online to also better service students. Online undergraduate courses are offered in history, theology, social work, business, early childhood education, special education and sociology. Master's courses offered online include: special education, business administration, social work, counseling, theology, teaching English to speakers of other languages and education. ✦

Enrollment trends over the past 6 years

Campbellsville academic programs continue to grow

By Hillary Wright, student news writer

As the years pass by, Campbellsville University continues to grow in its educational avenues. Just over the past year, several new academic areas of study have been added to the curriculum at CU.

In fall 2007, the master of arts in teaching English to speakers of other languages (TESOL) was added. In spring 2008, a bachelor of arts and bachelor of science in university studies were added.

Fall 2008 also brought on several new degree programs. A bachelor of science in business administration with an emphasis in healthcare management was added in fall 2008, as well as a bachelor of science and bachelor of arts in family life. A minor in homeland security was added. A certificate of Christian ministries as well as endorsements in gifted and talented, English as a second language, and director of special education were added in fall 2008. A Rank I for teachers was also added.

Several master's programs in music were added in fall 2008 as well, including a master of music in musicology, a master of music in piano pedagogy, a master of music in conducting, and a master of music in performance with concentrations in instrumental studies, organ, piano and voice.

Also, a master of social work was added in fall 2008. Other master's programs include: master of arts in education, master of arts in special education, master of arts in music, master of arts in social sciences, master of business administration, master of science in counseling, master of music in church music, master of music in music education and a master of theology.

Dr. Frank Cheatham, vice president for academic affairs at CU, said the CU faculty is sensitive to the needs of the students. "The deans and chairs are constantly evaluating the need for new and innovative programs," said Cheatham.

"In today's changing workplace, academic programs must change in order to offer programs that will enable our students to find jobs in their field of study. The faculty of Campbellsville University truly strives to provide quality academic programs." ✦

CU hosts education committee; honors Mobley

By Joan C. McKinney, editor

Campbellsville University served as host for the Commonwealth of Kentucky's 2008 interim joint committee on education Sept. 8, during which Kentucky Representative Russ Mobley, who serves the 51st district consisting of Taylor and Adair counties, was honored.

Mobley, former director of the theater at CU for 34 years, is retiring after serving in the House of Representatives since 2000.

Dr. Ken Winters, chair of the committee, who served as president of Campbellsville University from 1988 until 1999, praised Mobley as a "champion for education" and wished him a "long, happy, healthy retirement."

Mobley was also presented a Distinguished Service Award by Dr. Michael V. Carter, who followed Winters as president of Campbellsville University. Carter said Mobley had always been a "strong proponent of education in general and independent, Christian higher education in particular."

Carter welcomed the approximately 30 senators and representatives to campus. "It's a great honor to have you come to Campbellsville University and grace our campus. We wish you Godspeed as you conduct your business," he said. 🍷

"Teaching is the profession that creates all others," said Dr. Brenda Priddy, dean of the Campbellsville University School of Education, as CU's oldest educational program began its new home.

Ground was broken Aug. 12 for a new 14,000-square-foot building that will house the School of Education with over 500 students, 14 faculty members and four staff.

A check for $250,000 was also received from James Achterhof, director of the Richard Van Lunen Foundation that has pledged $750,000 toward the building.

Achterhof said that the Van Lunen Foundation furthers Christian education, and "We are really pleased to be a partner with Campbellsville University." He urged the faculty, administration, staff and students to stay dedicated to Christ.

Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of Campbellsville University, told Achterhof "Thank you for believing in teacher education." Achterhof was presented with a resolution of appreciation to the foundation.

The new School of Education building will feature the Dr. Beulah Campbell Children's Literature Collection Room, six classrooms, an auditorium, dean's suite, 20 offices, a student lounge, faculty work room and conference room. Naming opportunities are available for each of the rooms and furnishings.

Dr. Beulah Campbell, an alumna of CU who attended in 1935-36, was honored with a resolution of appreciation. Campbell is a major donor to the School of Education building, and the building will house her collection of children's literature and materials that she donated to the institution.

She has been widely known for her knowledge of and work in children's literature, has been recognized by numerous professional organizations across the country and has received an honorary doctorate of public service degree from Campbellsville University. 🍷

Alumna, Gretchen Walker, published in science magazine

After living in a science lab for three days, looking in a microscope every 15 minutes, then every couple of hours, the extensive research of one Campbellsville University graduate has paid off—by having her research published in a national science journal.

Gretchen Walker, a 2005 graduate of CU, was recently published in the national publication “American Currents,” which is the North American Native Fishes Association’s quarterly magazine.

Walker, of Titusville, Fla., received a bachelor of science in biology with a minor in environmental science. As part of her studies, she initiated research of a species of fish in an Adair County creek.

The article titled “End of Life Behavior in the Mountain Brook Lamprey” details Walker’s research of the lamprey in Russell Creek and presents information on “behavior, length, weight and post-spawning lifespan.”

Her complete research also included in-vitro fertilization and embryology of the Mountain Brook Lamprey.

Walker said she began writing a manuscript of her research “to be submitted to a science journal for review.”

“It is very difficult to get a paper published in science journals because they are reviewed by three peers. Many people will spend years trying to get their manuscript paper published,” she said.

“I had submitted my paper at least five times, to three different science journals, and had it returned four times for revisions. Finally, I was accepted when I got to the third science journal,” Walker said.

During the process of reviewing and revising, Walker said she separated the original paper into two articles. One article was published, but she said the original paper, which is on the in-vitro fertilization and embryology, will publish in the Southeastern Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies (SEAFWA) Proceedings in January.

“I thank Dr. (Gordon) Weddle and the science department at CU for support and assistance during this research,” Walker said.

She received an associate of arts degree, with honors, from Metropolitan Community College in Nebraska in May 2001. Walker is a 1991 graduate of Broad Ripple High School in Indianapolis, Ind.

She and her husband, Chip, have two children, TJ and Ashley.

“I was aiming for medical school and did get accepted in 2001 to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Duke combined pre-med program,” Walker said, but “God had other plans for me.”

She said her husband was unable to find a job in the area, so she did not go to North Carolina. Instead they moved to Florida near her husband’s family before enrolling at CU.

She chose Kentucky because she was starting to have neurologic symptoms, which were thought to be caused by multiple sclerosis since she had family history of the condition.

Walker said she thought moving to a colder climate would help her symptoms, but it actually made her symptoms worse, so she and her family returned to Florida upon her graduation from CU.

She was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in fall 2006, and at one point lost her sight and was unable to do anything for herself.

She began regaining her sight and physical abilities in the spring of 2007, then that fall she was faced with another obstacle – she tested positive for the BRCA 2 breast cancer gene, which led to a double mastectomy and reconstruction in addition to a total hysterectomy.

Although not currently working, she said she is involved with her children and their school activities as well as volunteering full time with missions and presenting breast cancer awareness programs.

“I did love going to college and I loved that my kids were able to see what it takes to be a student and to overcome the medical obstacles that were presented while I was a student,” she said.

Until she is able to work in her field of study, she said she plans to “continue to love God’s current calling in my life. I am very happy where God has me right now. He knows the best places for us to be.” 🍀

CU to host Baptist Heritage Series in spring 2009

By Christina Miller, student news writer

Campbellsville University will host the Baptist Heritage Series in spring 2009 to celebrate 400 years of Baptist Heritage.

The Rev. John Chowning, vice president for church and external relations and executive assistant to the president, said, "Campbellsville University is glad to celebrate 400 years of Baptist heritage with those who have committed and involved their lives around the heritage."

The Baptist Heritage Series begins with the visit of Dr. Neville Callam, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance. Callam is an ordained minister and a graduate of the United Theological College of the West Indies, The University of the West Indies, Harvard Divinity School and is a specialist in Christian ethics and theology.

Callam will begin the series speaking Wednesday, Feb. 4, 2009, at 10 a.m. during Campbellsville University's chapel service in the Ransdell Chapel. As a part of the series, a worship service, hosted by Campbellsville Baptist Church, will take place the same day at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Bob Agee, former executive director of the International Association of Baptist Colleges and Universities and former president of Oklahoma Baptist University, will be a featured speaker on Feb. 23, 2009.

His topic will be the "Future of Baptist Higher Education at Campbellsville University." As part of his presentation, he will analyze the draft "Campbellsville University—Vision 2025" document being prepared by CU's Committee on the Vision for the Second Century. More details will be announced later.

Agee served 16 years as the president of Oklahoma Baptist University. He serves on the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities' Committee on Accountability.

Campbellsville University's Robertson Worship Endowment and Baptist Heritage Series will celebrate the 400th Anniversary of Baptist Heritage with The Elizabethtown Area Sacred Community Choir (TEASCC), under the direction of its founder, D. Sida Hodoroabá-Roberts. TEASCC will present its 2008-2009 tribute to the Baptist worldwide spiritual heritage with a program titled "Honoring Baptists."

Roberts is a musician from France with graduate training in church music. Her primary goal with TEASCC is to share with the public the revelation of Christ through themes of crucial significance to contemporary singers, and listeners alike.

Her husband, Dr. Wesley Roberts, professor of piano at CU, is the principal accompanist for the choir.

TEASCC will perform Friday, Feb. 27, 2009, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ransdell Chapel.

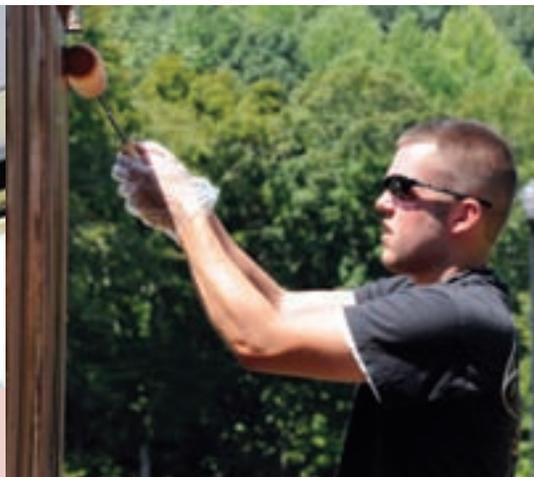

Campbellsville University and the Baptist History and Heritage Society will conclude the series at the Louisville Campus on Thursday, April 2, 2009.

"Celebration of 400 Years of Baptist Heritage" is the topic of the event beginning at 2 p.m. and continuing through the evening. Invited speakers include Dr. Bill Leonard, Dr. Morgan Patterson, Dr. Gregory Wills, Dr. Michael V. Carter, Dr. Larry Mason, Dr. Pamela Durso, Dr. Charles Deweese, Dr. James Jones, Dr. Lawrence Williams, Dr. Kevin Cosby and Dr. Leslie Hollon. 🐦

Each year first-year students have an opportunity to be stewards to the community and complete community service hours required by the innovative FIRST CLASS program. This year, there were more than 350 total volunteers during the fourth-annual KHO work days, which included first-year students, student mentors, Baptist Campus Ministry Council, Resident Assistants, KHO staff and CU faculty and staff. Dr. David Emmanuel Goatley, executive secretary-treasurer, president of Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention and North American Baptist Fellowship, and Dr. Frank S. Page, immediate past president of the Southern Baptist Convention, were the featured speakers at Campbellsville University's annual Pastors and Church Leaders Conference Sept. 25-26 in the Ransdell Chapel.

"Servant Evangelism in the 21st Century Church" was the theme of the conference. "There is no power in a push but there is power in a touch," said Goatley, as he spoke at the conference's final service Saturday, Sept. 26. Goatley said many leaders try to motivate others by using methods of the "push." He said this method depicts intimidation and manipulation.

"There are irrecoverable moments that occur in everyone's lives," said Page as he spoke after Goatley at the Pastors and Church Leaders Conference.

Page spoke from the passage of John 4:7, in which he said the woman at the well faced an irrecoverable moment when Jesus confronted her.

Page titled his sermon, "Following the Great Example." He said we need to follow the witnessing and ministering style of our Lord Jesus." However, he said, we need to be honest with ourselves when examining our own lives in comparison to Jesus.

The conference also held several sessions during the two-day event at the Ransdell Chapel. The sessions featured praise and worship from several groups, including the New Doxology, CU Trio and Brittany Hall, a worship arts senior from Lawrenceburg, Ky. 🍷

Louisville Campus offers master of science in counseling

By Christina Miller, student news writer

Campbellsville University's Louisville Campus now has a master of science in counseling (MSC) degree program.

The MSC program was offered at CU's main campus, and Dr. Leigh Conner, associate professor of counseling and coordinator of the MSC program at the Louisville Campus, said he, "saw the success of the MSC on the main campus" and believed that "a market existed in Louisville, with the demise of the historic tradition in pastoral care and counseling, for a theologically integrative approach to counseling."

The Carver School of Social Work and Counseling, originally a school at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., was sold to Campbellsville in 1998, and according to Conner, its first year in offering the counseling program at the Louisville Campus has been spent "developing relationships between Campbellsville, Louisville and the clinical placements in Louisville."

The MSC program began at the Louisville center in September 2007 with eight students.

Conner said the program "more than doubled in size" this fall, with more than 16 students in Louisville Campus seminars and Internet classes.

Conner was invited to serve as the coordinator of the MSC program in the Louisville Campus, having the experience as a retired professor and former chair of the seminary program in pastoral care and counseling.

Campbellsville's Carver School of Social Work and Counseling has received accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) and the Council on Social Work Education.

Dr. Darlene Eastridge, professor of social work, is dean of the Carver School of Social Work and Counseling.

CU honors Jim McKinley as Distinguished Alumnus

By Joan C. McKinney, editor

Career missionary the Rev. Jim McKinley was honored at the Oct. 4 Homecoming Banquet with the Campbellsville University Distinguished Alumnus Award.

In introducing McKinley, John Chowning, vice president for church and external relations and executive assistant to the president, said McKinley “knew where he came from, knew who he was and knew who Jesus Christ is.”

A 1952 graduate of Campbellsville College, McKinley served 35 years as a career missionary, mainly in Bangladesh, Pakistan and the Philippines, serving as a church planter, administrator and development worker.

Chowning said McKinley has a “passion for commitment and a servant attitude.”

In accepting the award, McKinley said the honor is one he would never expect. “I will try to be a better person as a result of (receiving the award),” he said.

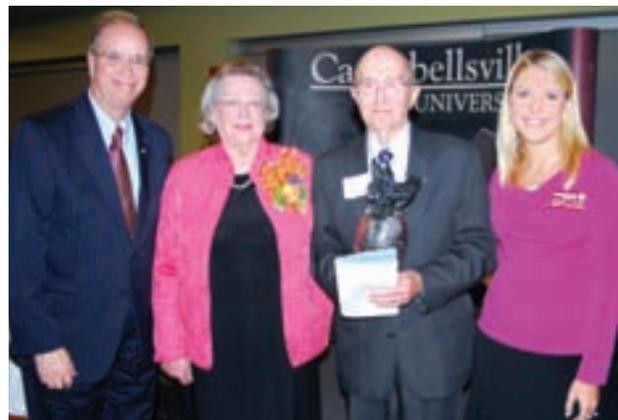

He said at Campbellsville College, he was “exposed to opportunities far beyond what I grew up with in Clinton County.”

McKinley, who turned 79 in August, is working on his dissertation at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

The author of five books, McKinley’s latest one is titled “Living with Muslims” which was published in 2007. He and his wife, Betty Cecil McKinley, have established an endowed scholarship for children of international missionaries.

McKinley graduated from Clinton County High School, the University of Kentucky, Campbellsville College, Wayland Baptist University and The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

In 1991, McKinley received an honorary doctorate of divinity and has also received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Wayland Baptist University. He served as the president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention in 2000-01. 🐾

CU goes 'Back to the Future' for Homecoming 2008

By Rachel Crenshaw, student news writer

Food, fun and football were some of the highlights of Campbellsville University's 2008 Homecoming events Friday and Saturday, Oct. 3-4. This year's Homecoming was recorded as being the largest ever, said Shannon Clark, director of alumni relations. She said close to 1,700 people attended the festival on Saturday alone, not including those who might have only attended the football game.

"We had a wonderful, successful Homecoming," said Clark. "We had the largest car show in history, a great 50-year reunion group, a wonderful Homecoming Banquet, and David Garrard (a magician who was the entertainment featured at the Banquet) 'wowed' the crowd. I am very pleased with our turnout and the events this year."

This year's theme was "Back to the Future." The theme was clearly portrayed as a 1981 DeLorean owned by Randy Herron of Campbellsville rolled down Main Street in the Homecoming parade alongside many featured characters from the movie.

It was presented by the Campus Times, the university's newspaper, which entered in the parade as a special entry.

Clark said almost 40 members of the 1958 class attended the breakfast at the president's home, making it one of the largest 50-year reunion groups in the years past. She said their love for CU and their close friendships are inspiring. The class surprised Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of CU, with a gift to the Ransdell Chapel fund. 🍷

Covenant: A Financial Planning Guide for Alumni & Friends of Campbellsville University

A Supplement to the Campbellsvillian

The Covenant Society is a recognition society for those who make Campbellsville University a part of their estate plan by including the university in their wills, making the university a beneficiary of insurance policies in which ownership has been assigned to the university, or by participating in any of the various life-income plans Campbellsville University has available. Today, over 200 alumni and friends are members of the Covenant Society. If the university is part of your estate plan, let us know!

Campbellsville University's Ransdell Chapel has many giving opportunities including memorial stones, which are pictured above, and which are in front of the chapel, for $5,000 and $10,000 each. Seats are available for $500 each and Biblical scenes for $5,000. Contact Benji Kelly, vice president for development, at jbkelly@campbellsville.edu or (270) 789-5211 for more information.

Planned gifts can help with Ransdell Chapel

What does planned giving have to do with the Ransdell Chapel? A significant amount. Whether it is helping with the Memorial Stones, Biblical Scenes or the Chapel Seats, almost all planned gifts can help Campbellsville University with the Ransdell Chapel. Consider these planned giving options that could benefit you and the university and help us reach our campaign goals.

1. The Charitable Remainder Trust?

A donor places an asset or assets into a charitable remainder trust which pays an income to him or her or another beneficiary he or she names for up to 20 years or for one or more persons' lifetimes. At the end of the trust term, the trust assets are distributed to Campbellsville University.

Benefits of Charitable Remainder Trusts

- You can make a significant impact on Campbellsville University.
- You receive an annual income at a rate chosen by you (the minimum rate by law is 5 percent).
- You receive an immediate income tax deduction for the value of CU's remainder interest (assuming the trust is created during your lifetime).
- You avoid capital-gains tax on any long-term appreciated assets you place in trust.
- You are entitled to charitable gift and estate tax deduction.

2. A Charitable Gift Annuity?

A charitable gift annuity is a contract between you and Campbellsville University. You make a gift of cash or securities in exchange for a guaranteed, fixed income each year for the rest of your life.

Benefits of a Charitable Gift Annuity

- You can make a significant impact on the future of Campbellsville University.
- You may receive a charitable income tax deduction.
- You receive guaranteed income payments for life.
- You receive tax-free income.
- You receive capital gains tax savings.

3. A Remainder Interest in a Home?

You can make a gift of your residence, vacation home, or farm today while retaining the use of the property as long as you live. By giving the remainder interest in your home and retaining a life estate, you make a gift of your home but have the security of knowing you can live there as long as you like.

Benefits of a Gift of the Remainder Interest in Your Home

- You can make a significant impact on the future of CU.
- You receive an immediate income tax deduction for the present value of the remainder interest in your home.
- You continue to live in your home, take care of it, pay taxes and even receive any income it generates.

At your death, your home passes immediately to CU, outside of probate, possibly saving some unnecessary expenses and delays.

As you can see, there are many ways to accomplish your goals and substantially benefit Campbellsville University. If you would like more information about gift opportunities as well as other possibilities, contact:

Zach is back: after redshirt season Allender primed to lead Tigers back to Kansas City

By Bryan Blair, sports information director

Coming off what could be termed the most successful season in Campbellsville University Men's Basketball history, the 2008-09 version of Keith Adkins' CU Tigers have a lot to prove.

Last season the team went 26-10, which included a Cinderella type run through the NAIA National Tournament where they made it to the national semi-finals before losing to eventual champion Oklahoma City. But gone from that team are the top four scorers, which would make it appear to be a rebuilding season for the Tigers.

However, Zach Allender, a second team All-American who averaged 20 points per game his junior season in 2006-07, returns for his senior campaign after missing last season with a knee injury. Allender sat on the bench for the entire season and watched as Campbellsville made its run through the national tournament.

The schedule is loaded with top 25 teams like Union University, Auburn University at Montgomery, Faulkner University, Freed-Hardeman, Evangel, Cumberland University and Mid-South Conference foes Georgetown, University of the Cumberlands, Lindsey Wilson and Pikeville. Plus the Tigers will play four exhibition games against NCAA foes Arkansas, Samford and Western Kentucky from NCAA DI and North Alabama from NCAA DII.

Campbellsville began the season at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville for an exhibition, and the first regular season game was against Mid-Continent University at the Lindsey Wilson Classic in Columbia. The results weren't available at press-time. 🍌

Lady Tigers aim for return trip to NAIA nationals

After a three-year absence from the NAIA National Basketball Tournament, the Campbellsville University Lady Tigers appear primed to make a serious run toward a return to Jackson, Tenn., and their presence felt on the national basketball scene.

Second-year coach Ginger Colvin, coming off a 19-13 season a year ago, returns three of her top four scorers and a very strong class of sophomores who all saw plenty of playing time as freshmen last season.

Courtney Danis averaged 17.9 points a game and scored 572 points in her freshman season, earning her All-Conference honors. Melly Heaton averaged 9 points a game as a freshman and as a sophomore, Kristi Ensminger added 8 points a game last year.

During the off-season, Colvin benefited with yet another strong recruiting class led by the signing of Western Kentucky University transfer Whitney Ballinger. Ballinger, a 6'3" sophomore from Carrollton, Ky., was the 8th region Player of the Year in high school and also a member of the Kentucky All-Star team. She played in every WKU game last season.

Megan Issacs, a 5'8" freshman from Hart County High School, was an All-Region player in the 5th Region and Corin Dunn, a 5'10" freshman from Lexington, Ky., gives the Lady Tigers some depth inside as well.

As usual, Lady Tiger Basketball once again faces a challenging schedule. The team opened at home against the top-rated team in the nation at Union University. Campbellsville will also travel to Hawaii this season for two games in the Surf-N-Hoops Classic in Honolulu where they will face Waldorf (IA) and St. Xavier (IL). Those two games are scheduled for Dec. 19-20. 🍌

Tiger Soccer off to 'best start' in history

By Bryan Blair, sports information director

The Men's Soccer team at Campbellsville University is off to the best start in school history with a 12-1 record and is currently ranked 10th in the National Christian College Athletic Association.

The Tigers started the season with 11 straight wins before losing to top ranked Lindsey Wilson 4-0. "We played against Lindsey Wilson without our top two scorers who had been injured," said CU Coach Adam Preston.

"That's not to make excuses because Lindsey Wilson is a powerhouse program, but I thought the fact that we were able to keep it close shows the great strides we have made toward making our program one that is on its way up."

The Tigers rank #2 in the NAIA in shots on goal per game with nearly 13 per contest and 6th in goals per game averaging 3.5 goals in a game.

Camillo Mueller ranks #1 in the nation in goals per game and points per game. Mueller is a 6-foot senior forward from Chile.

James Clements, a 5-foot-10 sophomore goalkeeper from Lebanon, Ky., is leading the team in saves with 4.4 per game.

"A huge part of our success this year is our team's willingness to work for each other. Individual goals have been put aside in exchange for a "team first" mentality. Guys who have scored goals their whole careers have set their egos aside and settled for doing the dirty work on the pitch to create opportunities for others," said Preston.

Campbellsville will compete in the Mid-South Conference tournament at the first of November and should the Tigers win the tournament they would receive an automatic bid to the NAIA National Tournament. In the event the Tigers do not receive a bid to the NAIA National Tournament, it's very likely they will participate in the NCAA National Tournament. Either way, it would be the first tournament on a national stage for a growing program. ➔

Lady Tiger Volleyball builds success

By Bryan Blair, sports information director

Lady Tiger Volleyball at Campbellsville University continues to build upon the successes of recent seasons. Coming off last year's first ever NAIA National Tournament appearance, the team is off to a 19-5 start and is 7-1 in Mid-South Conference play.

A big part of the success of this year's team has been the outstanding play of Teresa Masava. Masava, a 5-foot-9 sophomore from Nairobi, Kenya, has been named the Mid-South Conference Player of the Week five times this season. She has been tabbed as the National Christian College Athletic Association National Player of the Week twice and the NAIA National Player of the Week once this season.

"Teresa Masava is making a big impact as only a sophomore, and I think she is well on her way to All-American status," said Coach Randy LeBleu.

Masava ranks #1 in the NAIA in kills per game with 4.58. She recorded her 1,000th career kill midway through the season and was presented a game ball by LeBleu at Campbellsville's home match Sept. 30 against the University of the Cumberlands.

With the change in 2008 from the NAIA Regional Format to what is known as Direct Qualification, the winner of the Mid-South Conference Tournament in November will automatically advance into the NAIA National Tournament, as there is no longer regional play.

The Lady Tiger Volleyball Team is currently ranked 22nd in the NAIA. ➔

Campbellsville University honored Dr. Linda Trollinger, assistant professor of sociology, as the Non-Tenured Faculty Award recipient recently.

Trollinger was honored by Dr. Frank Cheatham, vice president for academic affairs, who proclaimed her “truly a servant leader” who always “puts others ahead of self.”

Cheatham said, in addition to attending and presenting at professional conferences each year, she has just completed the development of a major in Family Life to help augment the sociology program.

She also serves as director of the Writing, Engagement and Learning Program (WEL Program) at CU.

In February, she received her “Certified Family Life Educator” (CFLE) designation from the National Council on Family Relations in Minneapolis, Minn. This certification was a requirement for getting approval for the new major in Family Life for provisional CFLE designation for students completing that major.

Also in February, Trollinger attended a Student Engagement Conference at Murray State University with educators and administrators from across the United States and Canada.

She presented at the Appalachian Studies Association Annual Meeting on Perceptions of Personal Autonomy and Parental Influences Among Appalachian Adolescents. The conference was in March at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va.

Trollinger received her doctor of philosophy in family studies from the University of Kentucky in 2004, with a graduate certificate in college teaching and learning.

At the University of Kentucky she received an award for the Outstanding Doctoral Student for Academic Excellence, Leadership and Service to the College Department of Family Studies, as well as the Outstanding Student in a Doctoral Program, School of Human Environmental Science, with the College of Agriculture at UK.

Her dissertation was on perceptions of autonomy and parental influences among Appalachian adolescents.

Trollinger also received a master of arts in sociology and minor in women's studies from Marshall University in 2001. In 1999, Trollinger received a bachelor of arts in social science with a minor in sociology from Shawnee State University.

Trollinger has a son, Mark Trollinger, of Chandler, Ariz., and is the daughter of Ray and Virginia Burcham of Scottown, Ohio. 🍁

Remember When?

By Joan C. McKinney, editor

This photo is of 1976 CU graduate Rachel Whittler, now Rachel Whittler Tugon. Rachel has submitted information to this issue's Tiger Tracks.

In this photo is Kathy Brookshire Pavy, who is the wife of CU director of campus ministries, Ed Pavy.

Don Bishop, far left, is the former golf coach at CU and also served as director of athletics. Don led these other pictured young men in golf and we would love to have their names if you know them.

Guess Who?

The August 2008 issue of the Campbellsvillian featured a Christmas card asking you to guess who sent the card at Christmas.

The first correct answer received was from Karen McMahan of Campbellsville. Terri McCubbin Chandler of Campbellsville, Margaret Miller of Jamestown, Ky., Pat Myers of London, Ky., and Marilyn Dell McGuffey Combs of Columbia, Tenn., also guessed correctly. The Christmas card came from the president of Campbellsville College, Dr. John Mark Carter, and it featured his wife, June, with son, Dr. John Mark Carter, who is a current faculty member at CU; and the Carter's two daughters, Sally June and Jill.

Thanks to all who sent in answers.

We're featuring students, who are now alumni, in this issue of the magazine.

Can you tell us who these young women were who cheered on the Tigers and Lady Tigers? The first person to send in a correct answer will receive a CU T-shirt. Send your answers to Joan McKinney at jcmckinney@campbellsville.edu or call toll-free at (800) 264-6014 and ask for the Office of University Communications. 🐾

Scalos, business professor, is remembered

Harry Scalos, who taught business courses at Campbellsville University from 1959 until his retirement in 1992, died Sept. 22, 2008, in Campbellsville. He was 81.

"Harry was a very special person who made a difference in the lives of his business students," said Dr. Pat Cowherd, dean of the School of Business and Economics.

Cowherd served with Scalos since she came to CU in 1977, but especially since she became a full-time professor in 1986.

"He served as my mentor and my friend. I will really miss him," she said.

"Harry was a real 'laid back' type person," said Al Hardy, who knew Scalos from 1968 when he came to CU. "I never knew him to get in a hurry for anything.

"He loved to tell stories and students sometime remember him more for his stories than the courses he taught.

"He is one always asked about by the business students who were here during his years of service."

To Ed McGuire, who has worked at Campbellsville University's TV-4 since the 1980s, Scalos was a friend who was a "train buddy" who exhibited miniature trains together, especially at a display each Christmas at Citizens Bank and Trust Company in Campbellsville.

"Harry always demonstrated a passion for everything that he attempted and those explorations were many," said McGuire.

"His diversity of interests and enthusiasm for learning and sharing were characteristic of his intensity. Whether it was his desire to enjoy sporting events, his hobbies or professional relationships, Harry was quick to involve himself with his friends and associates."

Scalos received a bachelor of science degree and a master of arts degree from Eastern Kentucky State College in 1952 and 1954, respectively.

He served as head of CU's Department of Business Education in 1960 to 1962, and then as acting chairman of that department's successor department, the Department of Business, from 1962 to 1964.

Scalos was a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, having served in the United States Army. He was a member of Campbellsville Baptist Church.

His wife, Joan Spencer Scalos, died May 27, 2005. He is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, BRAD ('86) and Karen Scalos of Campbellsville; and three grandchildren, Stephanie Scalos of Las Vegas, Nev.; and Meredith and Andrew Scalos, both of Campbellsville.

Burial was in Richmond Cemetery. The family suggests that among expressions of sympathy be donations to the School of Business and Economics at Campbellsville University.

What did winning the "Educator of the Year" honors mean to you?

It was a great honor to win this Award and I am very humbled to have won this Award, especially with so many great teachers that are in the Campbellsville Independent School System. This honor is shared with all the staff at our high school as I feel that we have one of the best teaching staffs in the area.

You are successful because

Hard work & determination, qualities I learned from my parents & grandparents.

If I weren't in my current position, I'd be

There is nothing I would rather be doing. I have never thought of doing any other job.

For fun, I

Play golf, work in my yard, other outdoor activities

Where do you volunteer your time?

Church activities, School activities

Before I die, I want to

*TRAVEL & SEE AS MUCH OF THE U.S AS POSSIBLE AND ALSO
